

AVATARS OF INFINITY

Everyone has a sense of self, a sense of "I", the one who perceives, feels, thinks, and experiences life. Most of us do not distinguish between the things we are doing, the roles we are playing, and who we really are. We define ourselves in various ways and get confused because we identify ourselves with our labels. For example, "I am John Doe" is just a label. "I am a doctor" or "I am a mother" are just the role you are playing at the moment. It is pretty easy to see that these roles are not the real you.

Some people are invested in their life experiences and believe they are the sum or the result of these experiences. "I was abused as a child and so I am incapable of building a healthy relationship. This is me." or "I am an American and so I live this way."

Dynamis is the life energy that every Being creates and exudes, and which animates and gives life to our bodies. Many people believe they are the body. This is easy to do as the body feels pleasure and pain. However, if you leave the body and do not continue to animate it with Dynamis, it will soon die. Other people realize that there is something within, the mind, which does the thinking. However, the mind is a tool that you use, but it is not the real you either.

So what are you? A soul. You do not have a soul – you are a soul, the essential life unit that emanates Dynamis, which animates the body and gives it direction. The part of you that is aware of its own awareness. You have a body that you control to a greater or lesser degree. You have a mind that you also control to a greater or lesser degree.

Source is the point of origin, that from which Dynamis flows, the point of infinity in which we all exist. Infinity means unbounded, unlimited, and endless. In infinity there are no dimensions, no space, no size, and no form. Infinity is not conscious, it is consciousness.

Physicist David Bohm remarked, "The essential feature of quantum interconnectedness is that the whole universe is enfolded in everything, and that each thing is enfolded in the whole." The implication of this is that to know ourselves means to know Infinity, which most of us call God, and to know that we are all the embodiment of some Divine aspect, Avatars of Infinity.

From the point of view of a Dynamism Practitioner, Beings are in one of four conditions. Type I Beings are aware of themselves as Beings, they know they are connected to Source, and they can move between the spiritual and physical universes to a greater or lesser degree. The Beings who are somewhat connected to Source often seek out Clearing Practitioners in order to remove the barriers that prevent a stronger connection. A Clearing Practitioner is a spiritual guide trained to assist an individual to regain his/her individuality, self-determination and self-esteem. One of the Clearing Practitioners' primary goals is to guide the individual to Personal Sovereignty, the state of being which occurs when a person is at the center of his/her sphere of existence, creating his/her own life, and operating from his/her own spiritual essence.

Type II Beings are not connected to Source, but are aware of their own spirituality. They sense they can be so much more than they are currently manifesting, and they are frantically seeking to grow. Often the Type II Being is very powerful and successful, but still feels that nagging sense of not being fulfilled. Type III Beings have become separated from Source. They identify themselves with their body, and have forgotten their true nature. They have what Dynamism calls Spiritual Amnesia, the state of total identification with the body. They are not seeking spiritual enlightenment because they are in denial of that aspect of self. Generally it takes some major event before Type III Beings even begin to realize who and what they truly are.

Type IV Beings have a direct line to Source, but cannot function very well in the physical universe. They have lost their individuality in the depths of Infinity, and often have psychic powers raging out of control. Because their attention and focus is all on the infinite, it is hard for them to take care of mundane affairs such as paying the bills or making adequate meals. They are therefore inclined to opt out of the games played in this universe, often despising the physical universe and sourly wishing to leave it all behind.

The fundamental job of the Dynamis Clearing Practitioner is to remove the Decayed Dynamis and connect the Being back up to Source, and then to strengthen this connection. It is not to return the Being to Source Point, which would disconnect the individual from the physical universe.

We are all creators. It is from Source Point, the point of Infinity in which we all exist, that we emanate the Dynamis that flows through our individual beings and bodies, endowing us with life. Type II Beings believe that they are spirits and that is all there is. Type III Beings believe they are bodies and that is all there is. Neither belief is true, but both have an appearance of truth that the individuals in both cases call reality.

Type II Beings often seek Clearing Practitioners because they know they have lost something vital and don't know how to recapture it. Our case (the collection of psychic impressions which we have accumulated, the sum total of all of our baggage) is what taints our Dynamis and makes us feel so alone, and is almost always too difficult to overcome by ourselves. Clearing Practitioners bring out the best in us. By clearing our case, they guide us to understand who and what we are, to remove barriers, and to strengthen our connection to Source.
